STATE'S BIG THREE DOES NOT CONTROL "U"

HAS NO RIGHT TO CONTROL ITS EXPENDITURES

STATE SUPREME COURT AFFIRMS DECISION MADE BY JUDGE HANFT

"TENDENCY TO SECURE CENTRALIZED CONTROL MAY BE CARRIED TOO FAR"

St. Paul, July 27.—(UP)—Minnesota's Big Three, the state commission of administration and finance, has no control over the University of Minnesota expenditures, the state supreme court ruled today in affirming a decision made by Judge Hugo O. Hanft, Ramsey county district court.

The 20-page decision handed down by Judge Royal A. Stone, associate editor of the state high court, asserts that "on the surface of things this contest is between the board of regents and the commission of administration and finance, but the real issue is between the board of regents and the governor."

Justice Stone described the creation of the Big Three by Governor Christianson as a "tendency to sacrifice established principles of constitutional government in order to secure centralized control and high efficiency in administration."

"The tendency to secure centralized control may easily be carried so far as to endanger the very foundation upon which the system of our government rests," the opinion said.

Today's decision ends a controversy between the Big Three and the university administration over a $50 expenditure at the institution. The Big Three refused to issue a $50 voucher for work done at the school.

Ray P. Chase, state auditor, on Oct. 29, 1927, was ordered by court to show why a writ of mandamus compelling him to issue the voucher should not be issued. Judge Hanft then ruled that the Big Three had no control over the University of Minnesota expenditures and ordered the voucher issued.

Chase appealed and today's decision upheld Judge Hanft.

ARRAIGNED ON CHARGES OF VIOLATING THE NARCOTIC LAWS

Minneapolis, July 27.—(UP)—Arraignment of Leon Felix, Minneapolis and Eddie Connor, Chicago, on charges of violating the narcotic laws, was postponed late yesterday to Aug. 16, by U. C. Commissioner Howard Abbott.

Felix and Connor were recently arrested near St. Cloud in connection with swindling operations. They were said to have extorted $900 from a Clearwater farmer for fake eye treatment to the farmer's wife.

At the time of their arrest a large quantity of smoking opium was said to have been found on the persons of the "opticians."

Additional charges of extortion are expected to be pressed against Felix and Connor by authorities from Goodhue and Rice counties.

SAYS JURY WOULD NOT CONVICT HER; DISCHARGES GIRL

Seattle, Wash., July 27.—(UP)—Declaring that no jury would ever convict her of manslaughter, Justice Chester Batchelor today discharged Peggy Davis, 30, logging camp waitress, accused of killing George Fowler, 22, son of a prominent Brooklyn physician.

NEW CHINESE AMERICAN TRADE TREATY SIGNED

Peking, China, July 27.—(UP)—American Minister MacMurray and T. V. Soong, of the nationalist government, signed today the new Chinese-American trade treaty of July 25, in which China is granted freedom to assess tariffs on American goods.

Japanese newspapers here attack the United States, saying that the treaty represents a deliberate attempt to embarrass Japan.

War Renunciation Pact is to be Signed in Paris

200,000 COTTON SPINNERS FACE LOCKOUT AUG. 11

Manchester, England, July 27.—(UP)—The Spinners' federation decided today to start a lockout August 11 affecting 200,000 cotton spinners and probably about 300,000 workers in other industries. The lockout was decided upon after a dispute over one spinner, whose refusal to join a union caused other operatives to walk out when owners refused to discharge him.

HEAD OF LAKES SEMI-PRO BALL TOURNAMENT

BRAINERD GAME SNAPPY COMPARED WITH SLIPSHOD OPENER

PRESIDENT COOLIDGE HURLS FIRST BALL IN TOURNAMENT PLAY

Duluth, July 27.—With President Coolidge hurling the first ball, the first head of the Lakes semi-pro baseball tournament got under way at Hislop park, Superior, Thursday afternoon in a flare of pomp and color. Teams from Rice Lake and Ashland were the victors in the two opening contests, the former winning a spirited 10-inning battle from Brainerd, by the score of 5 to 4, while Ashland vanquished the Great Northerners of Superior in a wild and woolly slugfest.

President Coolidge, Mrs. Coolidge and son John, were the honored guests of the tournament management. They witnessed about three innings of the first contest, which proved to be a weird affair.

The Ashland-Great Northern contest, opening the tourney, was a slipshod affair, in marked contrast to the snappy 10-inning battle between Rice Lake and Brainerd.

The Rice Lake-Brainerd game was a nip and tuck conflict all the way. Brainerd took the lead in the first inning when Harney became momentarily wild and walked two which, with three hits and a pair of wild pitches, produced two runs. Rice Lake came back in the third, however, and by bunching four hits, gathered in three runs. The lead was short lived, for Brainerd sandwiched a base on balls between two singles and an error to gather two more and retake the lead.

Rice Lake evened up the count in the fifth when Harney took a life on Nolan's error, moved around on an out and scored on Mills' double.

They battled through four more scoreless innings and into the 10th before Rice Lake broke the deadlock. With two away Mills was hit with a pitched ball and then stole second from where he raced home with the winning run on Thomas' two-ply smash to left field.

One of the odd incidents of the second game occurred in the sixth inning when Brainerd registered three hits, one a double, but could not score. Collins opened the inning with a double. On Carons' single to center, Collins attempted to score but was nailed at the plate. Olson then singled through second and first and Caron was struck with the ball. Nutting ended the inning by forcing Olson at second.

In today's section of the tournament three games are scheduled. In the opener the Tracy, Minn., and Morgan Park teams clash, while the winner engages the Hibbing club in the second tilt. The Superior Cops and Proctor teams wind up the day's schedule. Winners of Thursday and today's games will compete in Saturday's conflicts.

"Outlook of World Today Is for Greatest Era of Commercial Expansion in History,"--Hoover

NOMINEE IN SPEECH AT HOME COMING FESTIVAL

REST OF WORLD RECOVERING AND WILL BECOME BETTER CUSTOMERS

HOOVER EXPRESSES APPRECIATION OF ENTHUSIASTIC GREETING OFFERED

San Francisco, July 27.—(UP)—The outlook of the world today is for the greatest era of commercial expansion in history, Herbert Hoover declared at his home coming celebration here today.

After being paraded through flag draped streets which resounded with the name of the orphan lad who got his first job here 33 years ago, the republican presidential nominee spoke at the city hall.

"Our foreign trade has grown greatly since the war until today, if we allow for the depreciated dollar, it is 50 per cent greater than it was before the war," Hoover said. "In the meantime the other great nations engaged in the war are only just now recovering to the level of their pre-war trade."

"The rest of the world will become better customers. They will have larger demands but they will also become stronger competitors."

Hoover expressed appreciation of the enthusiastic greeting which he received from the populace after he stepped off his special train from Palo Alto, shortly before noon.

He was greeted at the station by Major James Rolph, Jr., nearly 100 automobiles and two bands which played "Hail the Conquering Hero Comes." It was just such a greeting as the Horatio Alger lad gets when he returns home after making good, but it was done on a mammoth scale.

At the conclusion of the ceremonies Hoover started the return journey home by motor. He will be greeted in each of the little towns which lie between here and his home. At Palo Alto at five P. M. he will conclude his day with an acknowledgment of the greeting of the town where he worked his way through school.

Palo Alto, Calif., July 27.—Allan Hoover, 21-year-old son of the republican presidential nominee, may shortly enter a flying school.

Hoover had a brief flight over his father's home, the Stanford campus, and the lower San Francisco Bay region late yesterday with the United Press staff correspondent. He rode in a big tri-motored all metal Ford ship operated by the Standard Oil Company of California.

Like his father he has been tremendously interested in the development of aviation and has indicated to his parents his intention to enter a flying school, probably one of the army schools, as soon as the opportunity offers.

CHARGED WITH DROPPING CAT FROM PLANE

Madison, Wis., July 27.—(UP)—Al Meyers, commercial airplane pilot, was sought here today on a warrant obtained by William Busse, county humane agent, who charged Meyers with dropping a cat 1,500 feet from a plane to see if it would land on its feet.

STATE SENATOR STEEN DIES OF PNEUMONIA

Rushford, Minn., July 27.—(UP)—State Senator Henry Steen, 70, of Winona died here early today four days after he was stricken with pneumonia.

Sen. Steen who served three terms in the state house of representatives and was elected to the senate in 1926, died at the farm home of his brother-in-law, Peter Coburnson, with whom he was visiting. Interment is expected to be made in Winona.

RAIN BRINGS SOME RELIEF AT KANSAS CITY, MO.

SEVERE WIND AND ELECTRICAL STORM SWEEPS SECTION

TERRIFIC HEAT OF PAST FEW DAYS SLOWLY MODERATING

Kansas City, Mo., July 27.—(UP)—Rain accompanied by a severe wind and electrical storm swept over this section during the night and brought welcome relief from the terrific heat of the past few days.

The storm assumed cyclonic proportions in the vicinity of Excelsior Springs where trees and telephone poles were blown down. An automobile was forced from the road by the wind and demolished. Its driver escaped with slight injuries.

The rain greatly improved the prospects for a bumper corn crop in this section. With more than six million acres in corn in Missouri alone, the United States bureau of agricultural economics estimated the crop as of July 1 at 77 per cent normal and predicted a yield of 177,636,000 bushels or an average of 28.19 bushels per acre.

Recent rains in Kansas and Nebraska also proved of great benefit to the crop.

A WORTHY CHAMPION

GENE TUNNEY

Gene Tunney, who retained his heavyweight crown last night at Yankee Stadium, New York, by scoring a technical knockout over Tom Heeney of New Zealand in the eleventh round of a scheduled fifteen-round bout.

MOTHER AND 3 CHILDREN FOUND DEAD IN HOME

Minneapolis, July 27.—(UP)—Mrs. Gladys Johnson, 32, and her three children, were found dead in their home here yesterday after the mother had apparently drowned the children in a bathtub and then drowned herself.

Upon his return home from work Phillip Johnson found his three children, Lois, four months, Ernest, 7, and Phillip, 8, lying dead on a bed. Johnson broke open the bathroom door and found his wife's body in the water filled bathtub.

Mrs. Johnson had been ill for some time.

GROUPS OF OBREGON PARTY IN CONFERENCE

PROCEED CAUTIOUSLY TO ATTEMPT TO DECIDE ON NEXT PRESIDENT

LEFT WING DEMANDS EXPULSION OF LABORITES FROM GOVERNMENT

By GESFORD F. FINE (United Press Staff Correspondent) Mexico City, July 27.—Cautiously the various groups of the Obregon party proceeded today in an attempt to decide on the next president of the republic—with the left wing group determinedly demanding expulsion of the laborites from the government.

President Plutarco Calles still is the choice to succeed himself with Governor Aaron Saez of Nuevo Leon the second choice. The left wing, however, is understood to be opposed somewhat to both men.

Two days of meetings have been held without any definite agreement being reached. The meetings of the Obregon group are to be continued. It was considered probable there would be some additional demonstrations by the left wing group, demanding the ousting of the laborites.

Meanwhile it was said that the possibility of Calles succeeding himself—after being appointed provisional president—depended mainly on whether he could satisfy both wings of the Obregon party. Objections to his succession were not considered to be legally strong as the history of Mexico shows that the constitution—which provides a president cannot succeed himself—is generally changeable to suit the majority of the people.

It was believed that if Calles could satisfy the right and left wings of the Obregon party and desired to be made provisional president, this would work out.

Saez meanwhile remains head of the agrarian group. In addition to promising support to Calles, Saez also said the party had confidence in the police department in getting the complete details of the assassination of General Alvaro Obregon, who was elected president on July 1.

GENERAL MOTORS YIELDS INCREASE IN NET PROFITS

New York, July 27.—(UP)—Net profits of the General Motors corporation for the six months ended June 30, including equity in undivided profit of subsidiaries not consolidated, totalled $161,267,964, as compared with $129,250,207 for the corresponding period a year ago.

TEX RICKARD'S LOSS PLACED AT $140,000

New York, July 27.—(UP)—Tex Rickard's loss on the Tunney-Heeney fight was estimated by the promoter today at $140,000.

"I won't know for several days what the exact figures are," Rickard said.

Rickard attributed the financial failure of the bout to the radio and high federal tax.

"This is the last big fight I will stage and permit the radio at the ringside unless they pay a handsome royalty," he said.

14 OTHER NATIONS SIGN WITH U. S.

SECRETARY OF STATE KELLOGG TO MAKE TRIP TO FRANCE

SUPPOSITION THAT CEREMONY OF TREATY SIGNING TO BE HELD AUG. 27

By MAURITZ A. HALLGREN (United Press Staff Correspondent) Washington, July 27.—Arrangements were completed today for Secretary of State Kellogg's trip to Paris, where he and the representatives of 14 other nations will sign the renunciation of war treaty which bears his name.

Formal announcement of the plans for the voyage await only the receipt of an invitation from the French government, which is expected here tonight or tomorrow. The state department has already been advised of its coming and has been making preparations accordingly. The treaty, according to these advices, will be signed in the Salle De L'Horloge of the French foreign office.

Proceeding on the supposition that the ceremony will take place August 27, Kellogg's plans have been arranged to permit him to leave Washington August 18. He will be accompanied only by his private secretary.

Kellogg will remain only two or three days in the French capital, it was said at the department, probably only long enough to attend an official reception and state dinner which it is expected will be tendered him and other foreign ministers who will be in Paris for the signature-affixing ceremony.

Whether France or the United States is to be designated the repository for ratifications of the treaty will not be decided until the foreign ministers gather in Paris, officials said today.

Authorities here said they looked for most, if not all, the Latin American countries, to adhere to the anti-war pact soon after it is signed.

Washington, July 27.—Secretary of State Kellogg formally announced today that France had invited him to Paris to sign the anti-war treaty, and indicated he would accept.

The signing will take place either August 27 or 28, and Kellogg will remain in Paris only long enough to accomplish this purpose, he said.

He denied published reports that while in the French capital he would discuss with the French, British and German foreign ministers the questions of a new international agreement involving war debts and reparations.

Arrangements have been made for Kellogg to sail on the Ile De France Aug. 18 from New York with his private secretary, William H. Beck, and probably also Mrs. Kellogg.

SUPERIOR BOY CRASHES GATE

By ROBERT MOOREFIELD (United Press Staff Correspondent)

Superior, Wis., July 27.—(UP)—President Coolidge attended a sandlot baseball affair down by the railroad tracks here yesterday. His attendance was a signal convenience to a Superior youth who shows decided "One-Eye-Connolly" characteristics. The boy, Benny Thompson, 16 years old, did well with his first gate crashing efforts.

Denny, who is a messenger boy, rushed into the presidential box shortly before the game started and handed a telegram to Mr. Coolidge. President Coolidge smiled and handed the message to his personal secretary, Everett Sanders.

It read: "Hon. Calvin Coolidge, baseball park, Superior."

"Through you this messenger boy is able to get to the ball game without charge. I thank you."

The message was unsigned.

Denny saw the game. The president has become interested in trap shooting. A squad of workmen were busily completing preparation of traps shooting range today.

The chief executive is eager to enter competition on the range with members of his secret service staff, who are excellent marksmen.

STATE'S BIG THREE DOES NOT CONTROL "U"

HAS NO RIGHT TO CONTROL ITS EXPENDITURES

STATE SUPREME COURT AFFIRMS DECISION MADE BY JUDGE HANFT

"TENDENCY TO SECURE CENTRALIZED CONTROL MAY BE CARRIED TOO FAR"

St. Paul, July 27.—(UP)—Minnesota's Big Three, the state commission of administration and finance, has no control over the University of Minnesota expenditures, the state supreme court ruled today in affirming a decision made by Judge Hugo O. Hanft, Ramsey county district court.

The 20-page decision handed down by Judge Royal A. Stone, associate editor of the state high court, asserts that "on the surface of things this contest is between the board of regents and the commission of administration and finance, but the real issue is between the board of regents and the governor."

Justice Stone described the creation of the Big Three by Governor Christianson as a "tendency to sacrifice established principles of constitutional government in order to secure centralized control and high efficiency in administration."

"The tendency to secure centralized control may easily be carried so far as to endanger the very foundation upon which the system of our government rests," the opinion said.

Today's decision ends a controversy between the Big Three and the university administration over a $50 expenditure at the institution. The Big Three refused to issue a $50 voucher for work done at the school.

Ray P. Chase, state auditor, on Oct. 29, 1927, was ordered by court to show why a writ of mandamus compelling him to issue the voucher should not be issued. Judge Hanft then ruled that the Big Three had no control over the University of Minnesota expenditures and ordered the voucher issued.

Chase appealed and today's decision upheld Judge Hanft.

ARRAIGNED ON CHARGES OF VIOLATING THE NARCOTIC LAWS

Minneapolis, July 27.—(UP)—Arraignment of Leon Felix, Minneapolis and Eddie Connor, Chicago, on charges of violating the narcotic laws, was postponed late yesterday to Aug. 16, by U. C. Commissioner Howard Abbott.

Felix and Connor were recently arrested near St. Cloud in connection with swindling operations. They were said to have extorted $900 from a Clearwater farmer for fake eye treatment to the farmer's wife.

At the time of their arrest a large quantity of smoking opium was said to have been found on the persons of the "opicians."

Additional charges of extortion are expected to be pressed against Felix and Connor by authorities from Goodhue and Rice counties.

SAYS JURY WOULD NOT CONVICT HER; DISCHARGES GIRL

200,000 COTTON SPINNERS FACE LOCKOUT AUG. 11

Manchester, England, July 27.—(UP)—The Spinners' federation decided today to start a lockout August 11 affecting 200,000 cotton spinners and probably about 300,000 workers in other industries.

The lockout was decided upon after a dispute over one spinner, whose refusal to join a union caused other operatives to walk out when owners refused to discharge him.

HEAD OF LAKES SEMI-PRO BALL TOURNAMENT

BRAINERD GAME SNAPPY COMPARED WITH SLIPSHOD OPENER

PRESIDENT COOLIDGE HURLS FIRST BALL IN TOURNAMENT PLAY

Duluth, July 27.—With President Coolidge hurling the first ball, the first head of the Lakes semi-pro baseball tournament got under way at Hislop park, Superior, Thursday afternoon in a flare of pomp and color. Teams from Rice Lake and Ashland were the victors in the two opening contests, the former winning a spirited 10-inning battle from Brainerd, by the score of 5 to 4, while Ashland vanquished the Great Northerners of Superior in a wild and woolly slugfest.

President Coolidge, Mrs. Coolidge and son John, were the honored guests of the tournament management. They witnessed about three innings of the first contest, which proved to be a weird affair.

11 INSANE CRIMINALS ARE AT LARGE

BOLT OF LIGHTNING STRUCK ASYLUM, CAUSING SHORT CIRCUIT

Nashville, Tenn., July 27.—(UP)—Spurred on by the knowledge that 11 insane criminals are lurking somewhere in the vicinity of this city, posses today pushed their search for more than fifty inmates of the central state hospital for the insane, who were liberated when a $200,000 fire swept the institution today.

A bolt of lightning which struck the building late yesterday is believed to have short circuited the wiring, which caused the fire.

Erskine Young, night watchman, looked out of a window shortly after midnight, and saw one of the cupolas of the building aflame. Dr. S. W. Farmer, superintendent, took one look at the blaze, towering above the central building, while 2,272 helpless patients, many of them harmless, some dangerous and desperate, crowded in adjoining wings.

"Turn the patients out," he ordered.

Keepers went through the building opening every cell, and the hundreds of patients, many of them clad only in night clothes or wrapped in sheets fled out into the drizzling rain.

Everywhere guards and officers guarded the crowd with flashlights. In spite of their vigilance, scores of patients slipped away across the fields and along the roads to Nashville.

After hours of fighting the blaze was confined to the administration building and those patients who had been kept on the hospital estate were taken back to their cells.

Upon his return home from work Phillip Johnson found his three children, Lois, four months, Ernest, 7, and Phillip, 8, lying dead on a bed. Johnson broke open the bathroom door and found his wife's body in the water filled bathtub.

Mrs. Johnson had been ill for some time.

GROUPS OF OBREGON PARTY IN CONFERENCE

By GESFORD F. FINE (United Press Staff Correspondent) Mexico City, July 27.—Cautiously the various groups of the Obregon party proceeded today in an attempt to decide on the next president of the republic—with the left wing group determinedly demanding expulsion of the laborites from the government.

President Plutarco Calles still is the choice to succeed himself with Governor Aaron Saez of Nuevo Leon the second choice. The left wing, however, is understood to be opposed somewhat to both men.

Two days of meetings have been held without any definite agreement being reached. The meetings of the Obregon group are to be continued. It was considered probable there would be some additional demonstrations by the left wing group, demanding the ousting of the laborites.

Meanwhile it was said that the possibility of Calles succeeding himself—after being appointed provisional president—depended mainly on whether he could satisfy both wings of the Obregon party. Objections to his succession were not considered to be legally strong as the history of Mexico shows that the constitution—which provides a president cannot succeed himself—is generally changeable to suit the majority of the people.

It was believed that if Calles could satisfy the right and left wings of the Obregon party and desired to be made provisional president, this would work out.

Saez meanwhile remains head of the agrarian group. In addition to promising support to Calles, Saez also said the party had confidence in the police department in getting the complete details of the assassination of General Alvaro Obregon, who was elected president on July 1.

GENERAL MOTORS YIELDS INCREASE IN NET PROFITS

New York, July 27.—(UP)—Net profits of the General Motors corporation for the six months ended June 30, including equity in undivided profit of subsidiaries not consolidated, totaled $161,267,964, as compared with $129,250,297 for the corresponding period a year ago.

TEX RICKARD'S LOSS PLACED AT $140,000

New York, July 27.—(UP)—Tex Rickard's loss on the Tunney-Heeney fight was estimated by the promoter today at $140,000.

"I won't know for several days what the exact figures are," Rickard said. Rickard attributed the financial failure of the bout to the radio and high federal tax.

"This is the last big fight I will stage and permit the radio at the ringside unless they pay a handsome royalty," he said.

14 OTHER NATIONS SIGN WITH U. S.

SECRETARY OF STATE KELLOGG TO MAKE TRIP TO FRANCE

SUPPOSITION THAT CEREMONY OF TREATY SIGNING TO BE HELD AUG. 27

By MAURITZ A. HALLGREN (United Press Staff Correspondent) Washington, July 27.—Arrangements were completed today for Secretary of State Kellogg's trip to Paris, where he and the representatives of 14 other nations will sign the renunciation of war treaty which bears his name.

Formal announcement of the plans for the voyage await only the receipt of an invitation from the French government, which is expected here tonight or tomorrow. The state department has already been advised of its coming and has been making preparations accordingly. The treaty, according to these advices, will be signed in the Salle De L'Horloge of the French foreign office.

Proceeding on the supposition that the ceremony will take place August 27, Kellogg's plans have been arranged to permit him to leave Washington August 18. He will be accompanied only by his private secretary.

Kellogg will remain only two or three days in the French capital, it was said at the department, probably only long enough to attend an official reception and state dinner which is expected will be tendered him and other foreign ministers who will be in Paris for the signature-affixing ceremony.

Whether France or the United States is to be designated the repository for ratifications of the treaty will not be decided until the foreign ministers gather in Paris, officials said today.

Authorities here said they looked for most, if not all, the Latin American countries, to adhere to the anti-war pact soon after it is signed.

Washington, July 27.—Secretary of State Kellogg formally announced today that France had invited him to Paris to sign the anti-war treaty, and indicated he would accept.

The signing will take place either August 27 or 28, and Kellogg will remain in Paris only long enough to accomplish this purpose, he said.

He denied published reports that while in the French capital he would discuss with the French, British and German foreign ministers the questions of a new international agreement involving war debts and reparations.

Arrangements have been made for Kellogg to sail on the Ile De France Aug. 18 from New York with his private secretary, William H. Beck, and probably also Mrs. Kellogg.

SUPERIOR BOY CRASHES GATE

By ROBERT MOOREFIELD (United Press Staff Correspondent)

Superior, Wis., July 27.—(UP)—President Coolidge attended a sandlot baseball affair down by the railroad tracks here yesterday. His attendance was a signal convenience to a Superior youth who shows decided "One-Eye-Connolly" characteristics.

The boy, Benny Thompson, 16 years old, did well with his first gate crashing efforts.

Denny, who is a messenger boy, rushed into the presidential box shortly before the game started and handed a telegram to Mr. Coolidge.

President Coolidge smiled and handed the message to his personal secretary, Everett Sanders.

It read: "Hon. Calvin Coolidge, baseball park, Superior.

"Through you this messenger boy is able to get to the ball game without charge. I thank you."

The message was unsigned. Denny saw the game. The president has become interested in trap shooting. A squad of workmen were busily completing preparation of traps shooting range today.

SOCIETY RECEIVES FINE COLLECTION

Map Shows Division of State in 1850 of Nine Counties

Items Are Part of Leon E. Lum Estate; Preserved by County Society

Maps showing the nine counties of Minnesota in 1850, the Red River trails through Crow Wing, St. Cloud, and Alexandria in 1859 as well as some very interesting manuscripts on the early history of Crow Wing county, have been received by Judge L. B. Kinder, president of the Crow Wing County Historical Society, from Dr. C. E. Lum, of Duluth.

The items of historical value were part of the estate of the late Leon E. Lum who devoted a great deal of his time to the interest of Crow Wing county. They will become the property of the society and will be preserved throughout the years.

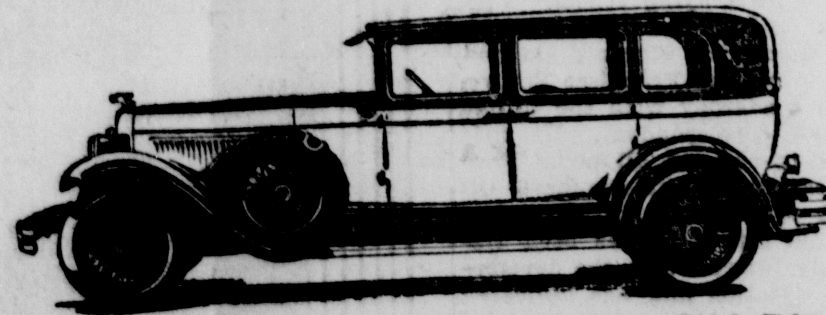

The map of Minnesota shows nine counties during the year 1850, Pembina, Itasca, Mahkahta, Wahnahta, Dakota, Benton, Ramsey, Washington, and Wabashaw. Since 1850, counties were added until now there are 84. Of the original nine, six still bear their names but the territory has been greatly reduced in each case. The three counties of 1850 whose names have since been abandoned are: Pembina, Mahkahta, Wahnahta.

Photographic copies of maps showing the Red River trail from Crow Wing to the other Red River trails travelling north by way of St. Cloud and Alexandria were also received. These maps were issued in 1859, being the result of a survey made in 1855 by Edward Holmes, army engineer on orders from the war department.

The trails through St. Cloud and Alexandria were known as prairie trails and the Crow Wing trail was known as the woods-trail and was chiefly travelled in winter. It was over this trail that the troops were sent from Fort Ripley to the Red River valley to build Fort Abercrombie.

The collection also included a framed picture of the late Leon E. Lum when a young man, a manuscript copy of the diary of William E. Seelye, old time resident of Brainerd, a manuscript copy of the narrative of the Eighth Minnesota Regiment and a copy of Mrs. Fuller Abbe's account of the Hole-In-The-Day outbreak near Fort Ripley in 1862.

DIRECTORS FAVOR GRASS GREENS

Committee Appointed to Raise Funds and Solicit New Club Members

Seek Co-operation of Citizens and Business Men of Brainerd

A meeting of the directors of the Brainerd Country club was held on Wednesday evening and the problem of grass greens was discussed. The directors appointed a committee to raise funds for the grass greens at the golf course and also to raise money by a drive for new members.

The directors report that they are willing to provide the grass greens for which a movement was recently started if the business men and the citizens of Brainerd will co-operate with the committee in making the venture a success.

It seems that many car owners of the present day are not satisfied with the mileage that they get out of their tires. This defect is often due to faulty alignment of wheels and tires wear out before they should under normal conditions.

TRY TO HOLD TOURISTS

The directors of the Brainerd Country Club at their meeting Wednesday decided to go ahead and install grass greens in the local golf course at once, in an effort to hold the tourists here. Their ability to do so will depend on the co-operation of the business men of the city. It is to be hoped that this will be forthcoming, so that the local course will be able to compete with neighboring towns in attracting and holding the tourists.

HOW ABOUT BETTER STREET MARKING?

BRAINERD, a city known to many as the "gateway to the 10,000 lakes region," is frequented every summer by a great many tourists who are here to enjoy the beauties of the lake district for a few weeks during the year. These tourists and summer visitors are not acquainted with our city and they read the advertisements in this paper and in other mediums advertising the merchandise that our merchants have to offer. These advertisements invariably contain the street addresses of the merchants so that the prospective buyers will experience no difficulty in locating the places where they can obtain the best values for their dollars.

Often Brainerd citizens are accosted on the streets by a newcomer in the city asking which is Laurel, Front or Sixth street. The streets are not marked sufficiently so that those here for a short time can find their way without difficulty. Brainerd is no longer a village with only one general store and a drug store that comprise the whole business district. It is a progressive little city and in order to be regarded as such by outsiders its streets must be marked so that outsiders can get around without difficulty.

This is true of our residential districts as well as our business district, for few streets are marked as they should be for those little acquainted with our thoroughfares. Brainerd needs streets that are marked.

We suggest that the city council consider the matter and that possibly with the cooperation of the city engineer they can devise a plan that will allow the streets of Brainerd to be marked as they should be.

ALL the accidents do not occur on the highways. Truck driver yesterday morning bumped the lamp post in front of the Dispatch office. The concrete post held its ground and the truck retired with a dent in the radiator.

THE VICTORY SIX

when the Victory Six was announced six months ago it was the talk of the town.

What would it look like? What would it do? Would it be different from other cars? In what way? And so on.

Then the public saw the Victory Six!

Its freshness of design was a revelation. It was different. Like no other car.

Rakish and trim—low and graceful—smart hued and colorful—it captured the eye. Immediately.

TUNNEY GIFTED WITH PUNCH SLEDGED WAY TO VICTORY

CLIMAX OVER HEENEY CAME IN 10TH ROUND

NEW ZEALANDER NEARLY FINISHED BY ATTACK, BELL SAVED HIM

IN 11TH THE DAZED HEENEY WAS OUT ON HIS FEET, REFEREE STOPPED IT
By HARRY FERGUSON
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

New York, July 27.—Gene Tunney is secure in his niche today among the great fighters of history. A rebuilt Tunney, a Tunney with a punch, sledged his way to victory last night over Tom Heenev, as stout hearted a boxer as ever waged a hopeless fight.

Referee Eddie Forbes stopped the bout after two minutes and 52 seconds of the eleventh round. Heenev was limp against the ropes, and Tunney was measuring him for a knockout. It would have been the first time in his career that the count of ten had been tolled over the challenger.

Heenev said he would carry the fight to Tunney and he did. Always he was lunging forward, flailing with his pudgy arms and taking two blows to land one. Heenev had only one punch—a looping right to the head. Invariably he telegraphed it five seconds before it came across, by jockeying his legs into position and dropping his shoulder.

The champion apparently tossed the first round away deliberately to sound out his man. He was the Tunney of Philadelphia and Chicago, a faultless boxer who drove in a blow at long range and retreated before his opponent could recover.

The change came in the third round. They were in a clinch when Tunney rested his head on Heenev's shoulder for a second and smiled wistfully as his eyes roamed across the vacant seats. When the bell rang for the fourth round Tunney had become a puncher.

From then on Tunney never ran away. He stood still as Heenev came at him, mixing his rights to the head with murderous jabs to the body. All through the fourth and fifth rounds the champion was driving his right into Heenev's heart.

By the eighth round Heenev's left eye was closed and his face was smeared with blood. But he kept coming in, a gory cyclops looking for the two-eyed man who was pecking away at his eye and his heart.

The climax came in the tenth round. They met in the center of the ring where Tunney found the wabbling Heenev an easy mark for a lightning one-two punch that drove the challenger to the ropes. Tom slumped down into a half crouch, his arms crossed over his chest. His chin sagged. Then the scholar got the better of the fighter in Tunney's make-up.

For three seconds he stood there with his arms at his side, gazing at Heenev with a perplexed look on his face. To Tunney the polishing off of Heenev was an unpleasant job. Someone at the ringside shouted: "Get in there, Gene."

Tunney came to life, spun Heenev into an upright position with a left to the chest and stepped in with his right fist ready. Coolly, almost mathematically, he marked his target and sent the blow across like a rocket. That punch travelled three feet, but it knocked Heenev three yards.

The challenger bounced on the canvas and rolled over once to land sprawled out on his back. His eyes were glassy and he was gulping for breath. Tunney stepped toward a neutral corner only to be stopped by the bell.

As Heenev came out of his corner for the next round, he automatically started that ceaseless lunging forward. He had only a vague idea where Tunney was, and his sole thought was to keep plodding ahead until he found him. Heenev does not carry a reverse gear.

His first knowledge of where Tunney was came when he felt a familiar jolt at his heart, followed instantly by a sledge-hammer blow against his jaw. Heenev probably will never know how he managed to last out the 172 seconds of the last round.

His arms were loose at his side and he was taking it on the chin, head and body when the referee stopped the bout.

The only trouble with Heenev last night was that he was outclassed. He met a faster, harder-hitting and craftier man, and the only thing he had to offer in return was his great, stout heart and a will to win. Tunney was never in danger.

Heenev forgot to think after the third round. Between rounds he was overwhelmed with advice from his seconds. They pleaded with him seemingly trying to get him to change his style and escape some punishment.

It was different in the champion's corner. Billy Gibson, his manager, would crawl through the ropes and peer into Tunney's eyes anxiously. But never a word of advice or censure did he utter. Tunney was his own general.

Consensus at the ringside was that the first round was even, the second was Tunney's, the third Heenev's with all the rest going to Tunney.

New York, July 27.—When Tex Rickard finishes figuring out how much he lost on last night's bout, his thoughts will turn to finding another opponent for Gene Tunney.

On the strength of Rickard's last elimination tournament, Risko has first call. The only reason Risko was not picked this time was that Heenev was considered to be more rugged, although Johnny is a better boxer. Risko's style is much like that of Heenev. He bores in, but is a little better in protecting his chin.

Watching the Scoreboard

(By United Press)
Yesterday's Hero—Lance Richbourg, Boston Braves outfielder, whose single in the fourteenth inning drove in the winning run as the Braves beat the Chicago Cubs 7 to 6.

Burleigh Grimes, former Giant, pitched his fourth victory of the season over his erstwhile mates. The score was 7 to 5. Carl Hubbell, rookie southpaw, making his first start in a New York uniform, was hit hard.

The New York Yankees split a doubleheader with the Detroit Tigers. The Yankees scored 11 runs in the twelfth inning of the first game to win 12 to 1, but poor pitching lost the second 13 to 10.

The St. Louis Cardinals regained their batting punch and crushed the Brooklyn Robins, 6 to 1. Frisch, Douthitt and Harper hit home runs for St. Louis.

The Cincinnati Reds beat the Philadelphia Phillies 6 to 4. The Reds used 19 men in the course of the contest.

The St. Louis Browns and Washington Senators halved a double bill, the Browns winning the first game 7 to 5, and the Senators the second contest 6 to 4.

The Cleveland Indians swept both ends of the twin bill with the Boston Red Sox. The Indians captured the first game 4 to 2 and the second 4 to 3.

The Philadelphia Athletics made it three straight over the Chicago White Sox by beating them 5 to 1. Doubles by Cobb and Fox put the game away.

JACK DEMPSEY STILL GREATEST DRAWING CARD

EVEN AS SPECTATOR HE EVIDENCED POPULARITY IN FIGHTING GAME

HIS VERY APPEARANCE CAUSED FLUTTER IN CROWD AND BIT OF APPLAUSE

By MAX BUCKINGHAM
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

New York, July 27.—(U.P.)—Jack Dempsey, even as a spectator, is still the greatest drawing card in the prize fight business.

That was evident last night at the Yankee stadium when Gene Tunney defeated Tom Heenev. It was the first heavyweight championship fight that Dempsey ever had seen from outside the ring. Through the nine years since Dempsey defeated big Jess Willard there had not been a heavyweight championship bout in which Dempsey had not been a principal.

Jack entered the arena last night as a private citizen. Nine years ago when Dempsey entered the ring at Toledo he was almost an unknown fighter, his hair close cropped and his protecting robe a well used red sweater.

Last night Dempsey came in dressed in the latest fashion, walked to the millionaire section—the first line of seats in the ringside. The very appearance of Dempsey created a flutter in the crowd. There was a bit of applause.

Dempsey held court. Millionaires, fighters and writers passed to shake hands with him. John McGraw was among those to greet him. He chatted affably and watched, somewhat half heartedly the preliminary fights.

Heenev came on and Dempsey nodded at him, nodded at Charley Harvey and keenly inspected Heenev. He nodded his head as if satisfied. Tunney came in. They nodded at one another—the king and deposed king.

There was the customary applause. There was a bit more applause when the fighters were called and then from the crowd came the cry:

"Dempsey, Dempsey, Dempsey." There was no quieting the spectators. Jack blushed and wriggled selfconsciously. The shouting became a din and Jack finally climbed through the ropes—a familiar action picture for all heavyweight fights of the last nine years—and received a tumultuous reception.

Dempsey left before the finish. He watched Tunney batter Heenev to the floor in the tenth round and then, while the crowd was too excited to notice, left the stadium.

TUNNEY GIFTED WITH PUNCH SLEDGED WAY TO VICTORY

CLIMAX OVER HEENEY CAME IN 10TH ROUND

NEW ZEALANDER NEARLY FINISHED BY ATTACK, BELL SAVED HIM

IN 11TH THE DAZED HEENEY WAS OUT ON HIS FEET, REFEREE STOPPED IT

By HARRY FERGUSON
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

New York, July 27.—Gene Tunney is secure in his niche today among the great fighters of history.

A rebuilt Tunney, a Tunney with a punch, sledged his way to victory last night over Tom Heeneey, as stout hearted a boxer as ever waged a hopeless fight.

Referee Eddie Forbes stopped the bout after two minutes and 52 seconds of the eleventh round. Heeneey was limp against the ropes, and Tunney was measuring him for a knockout. It would have been the first time in his career that the count of ten had been tolled over the challenger.

Heeneey said he would carry the fight to Tunney and he did. Always he was lunging forward, flailing with his pudgy arms and taking two blows to land one. Heeneey had only one punch—a looping right to the head. Invariably he telegraphed it five seconds before it came across, by jockeying his legs into position and dropping his shoulder.

The champion apparently tossed the first round away deliberately to sound out his man. He was the Tunney of Philadelphia and Chicago, a faultless boxer who drove in a blow at long range and retreated before his opponent could recover.

The change came in the third round. They were in a clinch when Tunney rested his head on Heeneey's shoulder for a second and smiled wistfully as his eyes roamed across the vacant seats. When the bell rang for the fourth round Tunney had become a puncher.

From then on Tunney never ran away. He stood still as Heeneey came at him, mixing his rights to the head with murderous jabs to the body. All through the fourth and fifth rounds the champion was driving his right into Heeneey's heart.

By the eighth round Heeneey's left eye was closed and his face was smeared with blood. But he kept coming in, a gory cyclops looking for the two-eyed man who was pecking away at his eye and his heart.

The climax came in the tenth round. They met in the center of the ring where Tunney found the wabbling Heeneey an easy mark for a lightning one-two punch that drove the challenger to the ropes. Tom slumped down into a half crouch, his arms crossed over his chest. His chin sagged. Then the scholar got the better of the fighter in Tunney's make-up.

For three seconds he stood there with his arms at his side, gazing at Heeneey with a perplexed look on his face. To Tunney the polishing off of Heeneey was an unpleasant job. Someone at the ringside shouted: "Get in there, Gene!"

Tunney came to life, spun Heeneey into an upright position with a left to the chest and stepped in with his right fist ready. Coolly, almost mathematically, he marked his target and sent the blow across like a rocket. That punch travelled three feet, but it knocked Heeneey three yards.

The challenger bounced on the canvas and rolled over once to land sprawled out on his back. His eyes were glassy and he was gulping for breath. Tunney stepped toward a neutral corner only to be stopped by the bell.

As Heeneey came out of his corner for the next round, he automatically started that ceaseless lunging forward. He had only a vague idea where Tunney was, and his sole thought was to keep plodding ahead until he found him. Heeneey does not carry a reverse gear.

His first knowledge of where Tunney was came when he felt a familiar jolt at his heart, followed instantly by a sledge-hammer blow against his jaw. Heeneey probably will never know how he managed to last out the 172 seconds of the last round.

His arms were loose at his side and he was taking it on the chin, head and body when the referee stopped the bout.

The only trouble with Heeneey last night was that he was outclassed. He met a faster, harder-hitting and craftier man, and the only thing he had to offer in return was his great, stout heart and a will to win. Tunney was never in danger.

Heeneey forgot to think after the third round. Between rounds he was overwhelmed with advice from his seconds. They pleaded with him seemingly trying to get him to change his style and escape some punishment.

It was different in the champion's corner. Billy Gibson, his manager, would crawl through the ropes and peer into Tunney's eyes anxiously. But never a word of advice or censure did he utter. Tunney was his own general.

Consensus at the ringside was that the first round was even, the second was Tunney's, the third Heeneey's with all the rest going to Tunney.

New York, July 27.—When Tex Rickard finishes figuring out how much he lost on last night's bout, his thoughts will turn to finding another opponent for Gene Tunney.

On the strength of Rickard's last elimination tournament, Risko has first call. The only reason Risko was not picked this time was that Heeneey was considered to be more rugged, although Johnny is a better boxer. Risko's style is much like that of Heeneey. He bores in, but is a little better in protecting his chin.

WHAT HAS HAPPENED SO FAR.

ALEDA RAY, pretty country girl, and Gary Chester, young engineer, are in love. Alede, working as a stenographer in New York, is living with Marise de Rense, whose young, sophisticated sister, Goldie, conducts a "flower shoppe", which in reality is a blind for a blackmailing scheme. Goldie is backed by Clive Mortimer, ne'er-do-well Englishman. Alede and Gary drive out into the country for dinner. Goldie receives a "commission" which promises huge dividends.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

Chapter XXXII.
GOLDIE DE RENZE talked into the telephone.

Behind her, among the roses that were wilting in the little slice of a flower shop off Broadway, stood crafty Clive Mortimer, the English "remittance man."

"A party for tonight? You want me to get three charming girls?" gurgled Miss Goldie into the instrument in her best professional manner. "But Smithy dear—" she winked surreptitiously at Clive, "you don't give me time to fix up anything—it's frightfully short notice—it's so late!"

A male voice—throaty—could be heard, protesting, from the other end of the line.

"What's that? Oh! After the theatre? You've three out-of-town customers?" Goldie's accent was italicized—and dubious. "Speak louder. I can't hear you," she beckoned Clive to come a little closer, so he could "listen in."

"You want blondes—they must be live wires—is that what you say?" Clive nudged his little partner, took the earpiece from her gently, placed his hand over the mouthpiece and said: "What is it, Goldie? What's the proposition? Tell him to hold on a second, whoever he is."

He removed his hand for a moment while she did as she was bid. Then, when he had again cut off the sound of their voices, Goldie excitedly, announced: "It's fat little Smithson, wanting to throw a party tonight for three of his best customers! He's a wholesale cloth merchant, rich as they make 'em—and crazy to stage a good show for their entertainment—he wants blondes!"

"Humph! That sort of a 'gentleman'?" grunted Clive. But his narrow eyes were craftier than ever. "You'll make him pay for his amusement, Goldie. Tell him if he wants you to be hostess, he'll have to loosen up on a stiff price!"

She was distracted, flushed and eager. "Quick—tell me what to say, Clive!"

"What's his idea of the party? Where? When? And how?"

She breathed, hurriedly: "Smithson lives in Westchester County with his wife and kids, but on the quiet he's rented, for a short while, a roof apartment in town. He's asked me up twice. I wouldn't go. I was afraid. With a crowd it would be different. No one could make trouble after, could they?"

At that, Clive's eyes so narrowed that they almost disappeared in slits, just like a Chinaman!

"No—no. You've got the game into your hands, if you only play it right! Tell him you'll find three girl friends calculated to fairly stun the butter-and-egg man—beauties from the big Broadway shows and accustomed only to the best stuff! Smithson'll have to pay you $100 for the corsage bouquets and the table decorations—white orchids for the girls—American beauties for the centerpiece—tell him you'll have to buy direct in New York—it's too late to get a fresh supply tonight from your Long Island marketman!"

Goldie then spoke into the telephone. All eager as she was to "land" this lucrative "commission," she cleverly contrived to make her voice non-committal, even a little dubious.

"What's that you say? My price is too stiff? Why, then if you're so cheap, Smithy, take your friends for a pleasant evening to the Bronx Zoo and stage a party with the monkeys and gorillas—but don't waste my time!" This with an air of righteous indignation that was laughable.

Came throaty protests over the wires.

"Huh? I'm to go right ahead then, am I?... Oh, just as you say!... I'm neutral!... Hal! Hum!... You're a great little kiddie, Smithy!"—this in a mollified manner—"Have it your own way!"

Her small hand—the nails so long and sharply pointed that they looked more like claws than anything human—closed again over the mouthpiece.

She whispered sibilantly—"He'll pay the $100 for the flowers—"

"Ask him for cash. No checks! And what about the—er—refreshments—for the guests?"

She spoke again into the instrument.

She listened, winking at Clive.

Copyright, 1928, Kline Feature Syndicate, Inc.

"I've a friend right here who, when it comes to booze, 'knows his onions!' Hold on a second, Smithy!" Then—and this time without closing communication—in a clear and carrying tone: "What's the best you can do in Champagne, Clive?"

He took her place. In his clipped, super-refined tones he made his offer. Two cases of genuine Pommery & Greno at $500 was "dirt cheap," he said. He'd got it right off the French boat himself, only this morning! The real stuff—with a marvelous kick!

The wealthy cloth wholesaler, it transpired, did not begrudge his money for good liquor. Clive's little deal was closed immediately.

"What's the address of the apartment? I'll deliver the two cases myself, at half-past eleven. Have payment ready in cash. No checks in this transaction!" Clive laughed mellifluously.

Goldie then made her final arrangements. She would invite three girl friends—suitable "live-wires." She would assemble the charmers at her own home around eleven-thirty, and the quartet would repair to Smithy's roof-apartment subsequently.

The flowers would be sent by messenger at nine o'clock, in time for Mr. Smithson's butler to arrange the table. Mum was the word! No back-chat in the meantime with Marise....

The host-to-be—his mind at rest about the after-theatre entertainment of his most lucrative customers—then rang off, satisfied. Goldie got her various girl-friends on the wire.

The "blondes that gentlemen prefer" obligingly complied....

At eleven that night, back in her home on West Fortieth (Marise was at the Harvest Moon... Goldie would telephone her there... this, luckily, was an "off night" when another "turn" would take the place of Goldie's song-and-dance) there was a ring at the front door... Goldie went to answer it....

On the step, and looking very pretty and animated, stood Alede. A man with her, talking eagerly—bared-headed—his hat in his hand.

Good God! It couldn't be the same....?

The handsome young man who had twice come to the Harvest Moon night-club and admired her dancing!... the man who had intrigued Goldie's imagination, and—if she possessed such a disturbing organ!—who had caught her heart!

WHAT HAS HAPPENED SO FAR.

ALEDA RAY, pretty country girl, and Gary Chester, young engineer, are in love. Alela, working as a stenographer in New York, is living with Marise de Rense, whose young, sophisticated sister, Goldie, conducts a "flower shoppe", which in reality is a blind for a blackmailing scheme. Goldie is backed by Clive Mortimer, ne'er-do-well Englishman. Alela and Gary drive out into the country for dinner. Goldie receives a "commission" which promises huge dividends.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

Chapter XXXII.
GOLDIE DE RENZE talked into the telephone.

Behind her, among the roses that were wilting in the little slice of a flower shop off Broadway, stood crafty Clive Mortimer, the English "remitance man."

"A party for tonight? You want me to get three charming girls?" gurgled Miss Goldie into the instrument in her best professional manner. "But Smithy dear—" she winked surreptitiously at Clive, "you don't give me time to fix up anything—it's frightfully short notice—it's so late!"

A male voice—throaty—could be heard, protesting, from the other end of the line.

"What's that? Oh! After the theatre? You've three out-of-town customers?" Goldie's accent was italicized—and dubious. "Speak louder. I can't hear you—" she beckoned Clive to come a little closer, so he could "listen in"—"you want blondes—they must be live wires—is that what you say?" Clive nudged his little partner, took the earpiece from her gently, placed his hand over the mouthpiece and said: "What is it, Goldie? What's the proposition? Tell him to hold on a second, who ever he is."

He removed his hand for a moment while she did as she was bid. Then, when he had again cut off the sound of their voices, Goldie excitedly announced: "It's fat little Smithson, wanting to throw a party tonight for three of his best customers! He's a wholesale cloth merchant, rich as they make 'em—and crazy to stage a good show for their entertainment—he wants blondes!"

"Humph! That sort of a 'gentleman'?" grunted Clive. But his narrow eyes were craftier than ever. "You'll make him pay for his amusement, Goldie. Tell him if he wants you to be hostess, he'll have to loosen up on a stiff price!"

She was distracted, flushed and eager. "Quick—tell me what to say, Clive!"

"What's his idea of the party? Where? When? And how?"

She breathed, hurriedly: "Smithson lives in Westchester County with his wife and kids, but on the quiet he's rented, for a short while, a roof apartment in town. He's asked me up twice. I wouldn't go. I was afraid. With a crowd it would be different. No one could make trouble after, could they?"

At that, Clive's eyes so narrowed that they almost disappeared in slits, just like a Chinaman!

"No—no. You've got the game into your hands, if you only play it right! Tell him you'll find three girl friends calculated to fairly stun the butter-and-egg man—beauties from the big Broadway shows and accustomed only to the best stuff! Smithson'll have to pay you $100 for the corsage bouquets and the table decorations—white orchids for the girls—American beauties for the centerpiece—tell him you'll have to buy direct in New York—it's too late to get a fresh supply to-night from your Long Island marketman!"

Goldie then spoke into the telephone. All eager as she was to "land" this lucrative "commission," she cleverly contrived to make her voice non-committal, even a little dubious.

"What's that you say? My price is too stiff? Why, then if you're so cheap, Smithy, take your friends for a pleasant evening to the Bronx Zoo and stage a party with the monkeys and gorillas—but don't waste my time! This with an air of righteous indignation that was laughable.

Came throaty protests over the wires. "Huh? I'm to go right ahead then, am I?... Oh, just as you say!... I'm neutral!... Hal! Hum!... You're a great little kiddie, Smithy!—this in a mollified manner. "Have it your own way!"

Her small hand—the nails so long and sharply pointed that they looked more like claws than anything human—closed again over the mouthpiece.

She whispered sibilantly—"He'll pay the $100 for the flowers—"

"Ask him for cash. No checks! And what about the—er—refreshments—for the guests?"

She spoke again into the instrument.

She listened, winking at Clive.

Copyright, 1928, King Feature Syndicate, Inc.

"I've a friend right here who, when it comes to booze, 'knows his onions!' Hold on a second, Smithy!" Then—and this time without closing communication—in a clear and carrying tone: "What's the best you can do in Champagne, Clive?"

He took her place. In his clipped, super-refined tones he made his offer. Two cases of genuine Pommery & Greno at $500 was "dirt cheap," he said. He'd got it right off the French boat himself, only this morning! The real stuff—with a marvelous kick!

The wealthy cloth wholesaler, it transpired, did not begrudge his money for good liquor. Clive's little deal was closed immediately.

"What's the address of the apartment? I'll deliver the two cases myself, at half-past eleven. Have payment ready in cash. No checks in this transaction!" Clive laughed mellifluously.

Goldie then made her final arrangements. She would invite three girl-friends... suitable "live-wires." She would assemble the charmers at her own home around eleven-thirty, and the quartet would repair to Smithy's roof-apartment subsequently.

The flowers would be sent by messenger at nine o'clock, in time for Mr. Smithson's butler to arrange the table. Mum was the word! No back-chat in the meantime with Marise...!

The host-to-be—his mind at rest about the after-theatre entertainment of his most lucrative customers—then rang off, satisfied. Goldie got her various girl-friends on the wire.

The "blondes that gentlemen prefer" obligingly complied....

At eleven that night, back in her home on West Fortieth (Marise was at the Harvest Moon... Goldie would telephone her there... this, luckily, was an "off night" when another "turn" would take the place of Goldie's song-and-dance) there was a ring at the front door... Goldie went to answer it...

On the step, and looking very pretty and animated, stood Alela. A man was with her, talking eagerly—bareheaded—his hat in his hand.

Good God! It couldn't be the same...?

It was! The handsome young man who had twice come to the Harvest Moon night-club and admired her dancing!... the man who had intrigued Goldie's imagination, and—if she possessed such a disturbing organ!—who had caught her heart!

MAKES BID FOR LAW CONVENTION

Hilding Swanson Extends Invitation to Law League to Meet
Here Next Year

RETURNS FROM MEET

Trip Takes Mr. and Mrs. Swanson
Over 1500 Miles in Upper Peninsula

Mr. and Mrs. Hilding Swanson returned today from a motor trip to Mackinac Island where Mr. Swanson attended the Commercial Law League of America convention. They visited Sault Ste. Marie, northern Michigan and Wisconsin.

"Comparing Minnesota to northern Michigan as a tourist region,
Minnesota seems to be farther ahead and has taken greater advantage of its opportunities although in the last five years the tourist business has developed considerable in the Upper Peninsula of Michigan as well as in the lake district of northern Wisconsin," said Mr. Swanson today.

The ten day trip took Mr. and Mrs. Swanson over 1500 miles of road. The convention attracted 650 attorneys and guests from all parts of the United States.

"There is a possibility of bringing this convention to Brainerd and Breezy Point next year. I placed the matter before the officers and secretary. No decision will be made before January when action will be taken by the executive committee," said Mr. Swanson.

Chairman of Park Board and Mayor Receive Arguments Against Contests

At the fourth quarterly conference of the Methodist church last evening against the dance marathon soon to be held at Lum Park as being "morally indefensible, belonging to that class of amusements which tend directly to folly, indecency, if not open immorality."

The resolution stated that the marathon dance was "utterly subversive of the finer things of life and in violation of the purpose for which Lum Park and all other parks were established."

Signed petitions of protest were today tendered the chairman of the Informed

Proprietors Recently Served With Injunction Papers Charging
Liquor Sale

Operators of the Gateway Inn, known as the "chicken shack" on Highway No. 19 are contemplating vacating the premises by the early part of next week, according to information received by Sheriff Claus

A. Theorin, today.

An injunction was recently served on the proprietors by the sheriff's department in which charges of sale of liquor were preferred. The hearing is scheduled for August 9 but it is understood today that with the management leaving, the hearing will be unnecessary.

Whether the building will be occupied under new management is not known. An order from the court would be necessary before the establishment could be opened again
this season.

Scores of trees are being salvaged
in Pillsbury forest near Gull Lake
by state forestry department men.
The trees which fell during the heavy storms of the past month were being cleared away this week. The clearing is also being done as a fire safety prevention measure.

Farewell Party

Miss Priscilla Ross entertained
the employees of the garment factory, and their friends at a farewell party given for the Misses Elsie Johnson and Margaret Olson. The evening was spent in dancing, after which refreshments were served at midnight.

Miss Johnson has been with the Hickerson Co. for the past three years, and Miss Olson for one year.
They departed Sunday for their homes at Grantsburg, Wis.

formation received by Sheriff Claus
A. Theorin, today.

An injunction was recently served on the proprietors by the sheriff's department in which charges of sale
of liquor were preferred. The hearing is scheduled for August 9 but it is understood today that with the management leaving, the hearing
will be unnecessary.

Whether the building will be occupied under new management is not known. An order from the court would be necessary before the establishment could be opened again
this season.

Bethlehem Evangelical Ladies Aid
The Bethlehem Evangelical ladies aid will hold a 7000 sale Saturday, August 4. The place will be announced later.

CLEAR FALLEN TREES Forestry Department Men Salvage Fallen Trees in Pillsbury Forest

Scores of trees are being salvaged
in Pillsbury forest near Gull Lake
by state forestry department men.
The trees which fell during heavy storms of the past month were being cleared away this week. The clearing is also being done as a forest fire safety prevention measure.

Farewell Party

Miss Priscilla Ross entertained
the employees of the garment factory, and their friends at a farewell
party given for the Misses Elsie Johnson and Margaret Olson. The evening was spent in dancing, after which refreshments were served at midnight.

Miss Johnson has been with the Hickerson Co. for the past three years, and Miss Olson for one year.
They departed Sunday for their homes at Grantsburg, Wis.

RELIEF FROM CURSE OF CONSTIPATION

A Battle Creek physician says, "Constipation is responsible for more misery than any other cause."

But immediate relief has been found. A tablet called Rexall Orderlies has been discovered. This tablet attracts water from the system into the lazy, dry, evacuating bowel called the colon. The water loosens the dry food waste and causes a gentle, thorough, natural movement without forming a habit or ever increasing the dose.

Douglas Fairbanks again "rings the bell" with his new United Artists production, Douglas Fairbanks as The Gaucho, which is now showing at the Lyceum Theatre. Romance, tense action, originality of treatment and captivating humor characterize this story of the South American border.
